Shadow Woman, by Linda Howard

This thrilling story closely follows Total Recall the movie. Lizette Henry awakens one morning to find that she does not recognize herself. Lizzy knows who she is and where she works, but she does not recognize her reflection in the mirror. She gets an eerie feeling that she's being watched. To make matters worse she starts to realize that two years of her life have simply vanished. When she tries to remember the past two years she gets excruciating headaches, however, strange, yet familiar, memories begin to creep up making her realize that her life is in danger. She also realizes that she has skills of a trained agent that do not match the life that she thought she knew. She knows how to locate listening devices in her house and how to elude people trying to kill her. While running from assassins she meets Xavier, a seductive stranger, who claims to want to help her. With no where left to turn she has no choice but to rely on this sexy stranger until her memory returns. Once her memory returns she realizes that this is only the beginning of horrible events that should have remained hidden.

STAFF BOOK REVIEWS CONTINUED

Is there anything better than being able to read three books in a row without having to wait 6 months to a year to find out what happens next? I recently discovered two paranormal series that I have really enjoyed and would recommend if you like science fiction with a twinge of romance.

The first series is written by Kalayna Price. The story-line takes place on earth, but after a time when magic and technology are vying for supremacy. Her main character, Alex Craft, is a witch whose main skills involve raising the shade of a dead person. Alex works as a private investigator and consultant to the police, helping to solve murders. She has two developing love interests, “Death” or a royal fairy. This series has a fast pace, great characters and an unexpected twist around the corner.

Book 1: Grave Witch

Book 2: Grave Dance

Book 3: Grave Memory

The second series is by a young adult author, Kiersten White. She writes about a young sixteen-year-old girl called Evie who is trying to figure out what she is and what her purpose is. She is a “human” who can see through the glamour of paranormals to their true self, whether vampire, werewolf, fairy or something else. Her skills have been tapped by a covert agency which uses her to track down and tag other paranormals. The introduction of a love interest and the mysterious death of paranormals cause Evie to reassess everything she knows to be true. These tales are definitely of an angst ridden teenager. If you can get past that, you will certainly enjoy reading these paranormal tales.

Book 1: Paranormalcy

Book 2: Supernaturally

Book 3: Endlessly
